PICKING AND CHOOSING.

A Favorite Occupation of the Street Urchin.

An anonymous contributor to the Atlantic Monthly has been amusing herself by observing the amusements of poor children in city streets. One raw, gray March Sunday she saw half a dozen little girls—very small, but not babies, the oldest perhaps eight—sitting on the inhospitable steps of a gloomy closed business building down town.

It was a cross street; there were very few people going by. It must have been a dreary tenement house indeed from which, on such a day, this bare place offered a refuge. I suppose a few people, going to and from a ferry, were their entertainers; for, as you will see, it was to feast on the passers-by that they were there.

As I approached, they were gabbling, but softly, with their heads all together, and turned from me toward some retreating feminine figure; but when one looked my way she set up a mysterious little wild cackle, whereupon all attention was centered upon my modest person, and—my vanity expands delightfully now with the recollection—from the first observer I caught, in the loudest and most gleeful of undertones, the words: "That's me! That's me!"

Then lowering her voice, with a note of awe, she added: "Oh, see, seely Silk! silk!" and the small, blue, grimy hands smoothed automatically her own ragged frock, while in a trance of rapture she gazed at mine, where, after all, I remember with still poignant regret, only a very humble portion of silk was visible.

They were "choosing," you see, as I used to from fashion plates, and were utterly oblivious of my existence other than as a lovely vision sent for their delight. And what a thing it is for me to know that I once presented such an aspect to fellow-beings!

GOOD MEMORY.

It Is Not an Independent Faculty of the Mind.

Whatever may be said in regard to training the memory, it must be remembered that memory is not, as used to be supposed, an independent faculty of the mind that in some mysterious way may be directly strengthened by exercise, as the blacksmith strengthens his arm; but that memory is retentive due to the plasticity of nerve substance, and to the property of nerve centers by which they retain, in growth, their functional modifications; and that recollection depends upon physiological conditions, such as the cerebral circulation and the proper functioning of nerve cells; moreover, that a complete act of recollection is a complex process involving comparison, inference, and the like.

Hence, says Scribner, whatever in general is conducive to vigorous health, and whatever tends to habits of clear and orderly thinking—such conditions will aid recollection. And whatever is detrimental to the normal functioning of the nerve cells—fatigue, intense emotion, or the like—and whatever blinds the judgment, will hinder recollection. In short, all psychological beatitudes are on the head of him who has good health, sane emotions, and trained power of attention. But no amount of study, nor all the prescriptions of mnemonic doctors, from Simonides to Loisette, (except so far as they train attention,) can atone for anæmia of body or lack of the power of attention.

GREAT HEROISM.

The Courageous Conduct of a Young Japanese Nobleman.

I recall to mind a story of an officer in the emperor's army who were besieging a fortress, says Sir Edwin Arnold. Their number was small, and a relieving army was coming up. It was of immense moment that they should know how long the fortress could hold out. If it must capitulate for want of supplies within a week, they could stay and win the campaign for the emperor. A young Japanese nobleman volunteered to go into the fortress and ascertain how long they could hold out. He disguised himself, and in passing learned that they had food and water for only two days more.

As he was going out with this precious information he was detected and the enemy said to him: "We are going to crucify you, but we will let you off on one condition—that you go to the wall and tell your people that we have supplies for a week." He said: "Very well," and he went to the wall. His wife and children in the besiegers' camp saw him, his friends were there also, and he held up both hands and said to them: "There are supplies for but two days. Continue the siege and you will take the place." He died by a hundred spear points, but he had done his duty to his general.

A Novel Timepiece.

A Muhlenberg (Pa.) watch and clockmaker has completed a novel clock for exhibition at the world's fair in Chicago. Around the dial is a railway track, on which a miniature locomotive makes the circuit every five minutes. It requires a magnifying glass to see the delicate machinery. The oil cups in the journals are so small that nothing larger than a hair can be inserted. There is a headlight and bell, flag holders on the pilot, whistle and everything usually connected with a locomotive. It has a link motion under the engine to reverse it. The weight of the locomotive is one and a quarter pounds.

LIFE-SAVING SOAP.

Cannibals Who Were Very Fond of Washing Themselves.

A cake of soap is said to have saved the lives of five men and a boy, off the coast of New Guinea. The story, as told in a smoking-room of a steamer going to Brisbane, by an old man, the owner of several vessels engaged in pearl-fishing, is reported in Mr. Nisbet's "Colonial Tramp."

"It all happened in a moment," said the old man. "The ship struck a part of the reef and went down like a thunderbolt, and we had only time to jump overboard and swim ashore.

"We were at the mouth of Cloudy Bay, which meant slow roasting alive as soon as the natives got a peep at us. We were wet, hungry and miserable, with nothing to stay the pangs of hunger.

"As daylight dawned I saw a case slowly drifting to shore. In a moment we were all wading and swimming to secure the treasure. We had it on shore in no time, and prying it open with our fingers found it filled with soap. We denounced our hard luck in emphatic language.

"'Close around the case, boys, they're coming!' I shouted, as I saw fifty mop-headed savages armed with spears, bows and arrows, rushing toward us. At fifteen yards' distance they paused, and their chief came out to talk with us. I grabbed an armful of soap tablets and advanced to meet him. His eyes lighted as he saw the amber-like cakes on which the sun was shining. Novelties, when they take, mean success.

"Going straight up to this man-eater I offered him a cake. He took it, smelt it and tasted it. Evidently he did not like its taste, for he growled at me. By signs I showed him how to use it. The Papuan is fond of washing himself, and my gentleman took his fancy. Seeing a stream of fresh water, I led the chief to it. First washing my own hands, I gave him the tablet. He did as I had done, and was delighted.

"Then for the next ten minutes there was a scrubbing among those copper-skins. Their weapons were thrown down, and they lathered one another, and then tossed the water over their bodies.

"We were saved, and made on the spot medicine men of the tribe. The pictorial advertisements of the soap-makers were used to decorate the idol-house. Two weeks afterward we were rescued by an English war-sloop."

IRISH INGENUITY.

How Pat Helped His Jaded Nag Up the Hill.

The graceful hint succeeds best. If it is also witty, it is pretty sure to prove irresistible. Up one of the long hills of County Wicklow, says the Utica Times, a mare was drawing a heavy load of travelers. The driver walked by her side, trying to encourage her as she toiled slowly and wearily along.

The six passengers were too busily engaged in conversation to notice how slowly the car progressed. Presently the driver opened the door at the rear of the cab and slammed it to again. Those inside started, but thought that he was only assuring himself that the door was securely closed.

Again Pat opened and slammed to the door. The travelers inquired angrily why he disturbed them in that manner.

"Whist," he whispered, "don't spake so loud—she'll overhear us."

"Who?"

"The mare. Spake low," he continued, putting his hand over his mouth and nose. "Sure, I'm desavin' the crayture! Every time she hears the door slammin' that way she thinks one of yez is gettin down' to walk up the hill and that raises her sperrets."

The passengers took the hint.

IN ARCADY.

Poets Dwell There with Shepherdesses Under Spreading Beech Trees.

Arcady never arose out of sheer gladness of heart and lustihood of fancy. To the poetic imagination, says a writer in Scribner, the difficulties, deprivities and insufficiency of actual life have always been especially manifest and oppressive. But the poetic imagination at its best never rests in discontent, in the mere apprehension and recital of woes. It is creative and seeks a remedy, or at least a refuge. From the first it has found some approach to that peace and sincerity which it cannot do without, but which actual life seems to deny, everywhere in nature. Thus the poet's favorite haunt has always been the vales and the groves, the flowery banks and the green fields. But nature wholly unpeopled still failed to satisfy, and so the poets in their inspirations after earthly perfection fell to colonizing their placid retreats with the children of their fancy. Thus came Arcady—the land of fantastic shepherds and shepherdesses, where everybody was honest and simple, where the tending of sheep was but a pastime, and the chanting of madrigals the chief pursuit.

Productive Power of Weeds.

To ascertain the productive power of weeds, the seeds upon a single plant of different species have been counted with the following results: Wild carrot, 1,200; dandelion, 1,500; chickweed, 2,000; cockle, 3,200; campion, 3,[illegible]; chess, 3,500; dock, 3,700; ragweed, 4,672; groundsel, 6,500; ox-eye daisy, 9,600; mallow, 10,500; motherwort, 18,000; foxtail, 19,500; sow thistle, $19,000; mustard, 31,000; Canada thistle, 42,000; red poppy, 50,000; burdock, $400,328; purslane, 500,000; lambs' quarters, 825,000.

FAITHFUL IN DEATH.

The Touching Affection of a Bear for Her Young.

So many pathetic stories are told of the misery caused by hunters in the animal world that one can scarcely tolerate the idea of shooting merely for "sport." When the term means merely wanton cruelty, then it is time to seek more peaceful if less exciting occupations, says the Youth's Companion. A story is told of a polar bear which, with two large cubs, was sighted by the crew of an exploring frigate. When the animals were within reach of the vessel, the sailors threw them great lumps of raw meat, and these the old bear divided among her cubs, reserving only a small portion for herself. Then, when the three animals were happily feeding, the sailors fired. They wounded the dam and killed the cubs.

It would have drawn tears of pity from any but the unfeeling to have marked the affectionate concern expressed by this poor beast in the last moments of her expiring young. Though she was dreadfully wounded, she tore another lump of flesh in pieces, and laid it before them.

When she found that they would not eat, she laid her paws first on one and then the other, and tried to raise them up. All this time it was pitiful to hear her moan. When she was convinced that they would not stir, she walked away, looking back and still moaning; and when they did not entice them to rise, she returned and began to lick their wounds.

She went off a second time as before, and having crawled a few paces looked again behind her. The cubs did not rise, and she returned, and with signs of inexpressible fondness went round pawing them and moaning. Finding at last that they were cold and lifeless, she raised her head toward the ship and uttered a grand cry of despair, which the murderers returned with a volley of balls. Then she fell between her cubs and died, licking their wounds.

IN EVERYBODY'S WAY.

Duties Neglected Often Untold and General Annoyance.

Nothing in this world gets in everybody's way like belated work, writes Bertha Bates in Ladies' Home Journal. Get behind on errand and lose your way; after the right time for traveling is past there is nothing you can question; the people are in bed; the finger-boards are in the dark; only the dogs are awake, they swarm out upon you when you hail a house; the smaller the house the bigger and meaner the dogs; try drawn your "in to the house" in their hideous yelping and howling; they try to jump into the wagon. Had you stopped at sunset and started in afresh next morning, you would have saved time, worry, temper and nerves. Let one train on a railway lose time. There are a hundred trains running smoothly on that line until that one gets off its own time. Then, mehow, it gets in everybody's way. Lumbering freights, slow-moving gravel trains, reckless "wild trains" jumping into the spaces of time left by the regulars and skipping along without a jar, round-looking construction trains, ominous-looking "wreckers" and swift-winged express—everything getting along with everything else until this one train loses its own time and gets onto something else. Then there is trouble and vexation all round, until at last the slow train is condemned as a general nuisance, is abandoned, losing all its own rights, and is run as a second section of No. 73, 72 being a stock express, with cattle and hogs for the delicious Communipaw stockyards.

A COSTLY EXPERIMENT.

The Pasha Reposed Too Much Faith in Human Nature.

When Empress Eugenie visited Cairo in 1869, Napoleon III. presented to Nubar Pasha a valuable watch set with diamonds. This watch he was in the habit of placing before him on the table during the meetings of the council, which were generally held in the evening, says a writer in the National Zeitung. At one of the sittings the electric light suddenly went out. When it was turned on again Nubar's watch had disappeared. The pasha scrutinized the faces of his colleagues one after the other, but not one winced under his gaze. At length he said:

"Gentlemen, the watch that, according to my custom, I had lying here before me, has been removed. The door is locked on the inside, nobody has entered the room in the meantime, and nobody has gone out. I attribute the loss of the watch to a bad joke or a fit of abstraction on the part of one of you gentlemen. I will now turn out the light once more, feeling convinced that when it is turned on again the watch will be found in its usual place."

The light was then put out. When it shone brightly a minute later, not only was the place where the watch had been still vacant, but Nubar's jeweled inkstand, a present from Victor Emmanuel, had also vanished. Nubar Pasha never saw either of these articles again.

A Strange Funeral Custom.

In Italy, France and Spain it is common to ring a handbell a short distance in advance of a funeral procession. The object of this custom is said to be to clear the way for the procession, to remind passengers and loiterers to take off their hats, and to call the pious to their doors and windows to gaze upon the emblems of mortality and to say a prayer for the repose of the soul of the departed one.

UNFAIRLY TREATED.

The Left Hand Insists She Is Not Properly Treated.

This curious little extract, which reads somewhat like a riddle, comes from a letter written by Dr. Franklin to the American Museum. The learned doctor is speaking on a subject about which there is a great diversity of opinion. He is arguing the cause of the left hand; and contends that she is entitled to equal consideration with the right. That she ought to be equally instructed, in order that if anything should happen to her sister, she might be as competent for useful employment as the right would be if deprived of the assistance of the left.

"There are two sisters of us, and the two eyes of man do not resemble nor are capable of being on better terms with each other than my sister and myself, but for the partiality of our parents, who make the most injurious distinctions between us. From my infancy I have been led to consider my sister as being of more elevated rank. Nothing was spared in her education, while I was suffered to grow up without the least instruction. She had masters to teach her writing, drawing and other genteel accomplishments; but if by chance I touched a pencil, a pen, or a needle, I was bitterly rebuked, and more than once I have been beaten for being awkward and wanting a graceful manner. It is true my sister associated me with her upon some occasions, but she always made a point of taking the lead, calling upon me only from necessity, or to figure at her side."

[illegible] of Dr. Franklin's argument [illegible] hand has never yet taken equal [illegible] with the right, and, for many reasons, it seems hardly probable that she ever will.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

A Sacrifice That Was Too Great to Be Borne.

The momentous question had been propounded, says the Detroit Tribune. Large pearly tears clung to her drooping eyelashes and her bosom heaved with emotion, just as tears have clung and bosoms have heaved under similar circumstances since the days of the cave-dwellers. He held her hand clasped to his vest. "I know I am poor," the youthful lover faltered. A gleam of courage kindled her being. She raised her eyes [illegible]n.—Mr.—Alfred!" It was her [illegible] a single word, eloquent with unutterable trust. "Alfred," [illegible]ily lisped, "I—I am not afraid of poverty." He folded her to his bosom, fairly intoxicated with joy. "With you I would live in a log cabin," she declared. A look of pain flitted across his face and he was fain to bow his head to hide his emotion. "I ask of you a greater sacrifice than that," he sighed. The girl of a moment ago was transformed into a woman now. "Do you want me," she eagerly cried, "to go west and live in a turf dugout?" He wept and the tears fell like rain. "Worse than that," he moaned. The brave lady blanched and a piteous expression of terror took possession of her face. "Alfred!" He could only sob. "Do you ask me—" She had to stop and shudder awhile. "Do you ask me to live—to—live in a flat with modern conveniences [illegible] was his appearance and [illegible]. Pale, but dignified, the [illegible] "I must bid you good night," [illegible]. Mechanically he [illegible] the door. "You need not [illegible]ait, sir." And so they were not married.

LEARNED OPINIONS.

Judging a Patient's Condition by False Eyes and Teeth.

Dr. Branton, in an address lately reported in the London Lancet, was cautioning his hearers—the members of the medical society—against hastily expressed opinions as to the nature of patients' diseases, and emphasized his warning by two professional anecdotes. He was once present at a clinic, the subject of which was a man evidently suffering from some disease of the heart.

An unnatural murmuring sound could be heard from that organ, and the pupil of one of his eyes was very much dilated. The peculiar appearance of the eye seemed to have some connection with the cardiac affection, but various opinions were expressed by the different students as to what the precise nature of this relation could be.

The discussion was just becoming interesting when the patient remarked that this strange-looking eye was made of glass!

At another clinic the professor in charge was discussing learnedly about the importance attending to minor symptoms.

"Now, gentlemen," he said, "in the case of this woman here, certain things could be confidently affirmed from the condition of her teeth."

He was proceeding to particularize, but just then the patient broke in upon him.

"Please, sir," she said, as she took out her teeth, "I will hand them around; the young gentlemen might like to look at them closer."

"I SHOULD think life in this flat wouldn't be very pleasant. That factory chimney opposite smokes horribly." "We have one consolation, though." "What's that?" "It doesn't smoke cigarettes."—Buffalo Express.

HE KNEW HOW TO DO IT.—Bride—"George, dear, when we reach town let us try to avoid leaving the impression that we are married." George—"All right, Maude; you can lug this valise."—Demorest's Magazine.

LOUD-VOICED.

The Lung-Power Developed by People in Certain Sections.

Life in the country, says Dr. J. Harvie Dew in the Century, especially in our southern country, where people lived far apart and were employed oftentimes at a considerable distance from one another, and from the houses or homes in which they ate and slept, tended, by exercise in communicating with one another, to strengthen and improve their voices for high and prolonged notes. A wider range to the vocal sounds was constantly afforded and frequently required.

The voices of women as well as of men were often utilized for "long-distance calls." It may be amusing to note the difference in intonation which was usually exhibited by the sexes. When a man had occasion to summon anyone from a distance, the prolonged tone was placed on the first note, the emphasis on the second, thus: "O——h, John!" If a female called, the prolonged tone and the emphasis were both placed on the last note, thus: "You, John-n——y!"

Hollowing, screaming, yelling for one person or another, to their dogs, or at some of the cattle on the plantation, with the accompanying reverberations from hilltops, over valleys and plains, were familiar sounds throughout the farming districts of the south in the days gone by. It used to be said of my father's old negro foreman that he could be distinctly understood for a mile or more away.

Hunting, which was enjoyed and indulged in more or less by nearly every citizen of the south, was also conducive to this characteristic development.

A DOCTOR'S FEE.

How a Physician Received an Exchange of Services.

To the lover of dumb animals it seems rather extraordinary that physicians should of just to prescribing for a four-footed sufferer. Some of them, however, do feel "above it," and either refuse altogether, or perform the service under many a protest. The Pall Mall Budget tells the story of a French doctor and a painter's wife. The doctor's name does not appear, but the painter was Meissonier. One day Mme. Meissonier sent for the family physician, and he hurried to the house, thinking some illness had overtaken the artist. It was not the master of the house, however; it was only the lap dog.

The doctor pocketed his pride and most zealously attended the patient, who soon recovered. At the end of the year he sent in his bill, but among the items there was none for attendance on a dog. Mme. Meissonier noticed the omission, and called the physician's attention to it.

"You must charge for that, also," said she. "I insist upon it."

"By no means," was the reply. "I am not a veterinary surgeon. I was very glad to do the dog a service, but really I can't be paid for it."

"But I insist upon it!" said the lady.

"Well, then," returned the doctor, "as the hinges of my gate are somewhat rusty, M. Meissonier may bring his brush and paint them for me."

But as every grain of paint from Meissonier's brush was worth more than its weight in gold, the hint was probably not taken.

HE LOCKED IT.

The Novel Idea a Man Hit Upon to Keep His Umbrella.

A prominent young club man of this city, who is noted for his faultless attire, says the Philadelphia Press, was exhibiting a costly, gold-mounted handled silk umbrella, which was ingeniously fastened with a tiny silver padlock, to a number of friends, with the remarks:

"If it had not been for this locking device I would have lost this valuable umbrella long ago. Picking up the wrong umbrella on a rainy day is as time-honored a habit as the borrowing of your neighbor's lead pencil and returning it back to your own pocket. To test this question to my full satisfaction I strolled into the lobby of a well-known hotel one wet, stormy day, and, snapping the little lock through the wire spring under the folds of the umbrella, I placed it in a prominent rack among a number of others. On looking over a morning newspaper I pretended to be deeply interested in its columns. I had hardly turned my eye when a respectably dressed gentleman picked up my umbrella and off he went. It was raining in torrents, he couldn't open it, and in a moment or two he returned, ramming it back and muttering something about 'a 'mistake,' took another one from the rack, and was gone for good. You may not believe me, but for one hour that umbrella came and went every five minutes, men, women and children, old and young, grave and gay. The performance was kept up until it tired me out. I took charge of it finally and sauntered off home."

Spurious Shawls.

A good deal of indignation has been excited by a discovery recently made by the Calcutta customs of a trade in spurious Cashmere shawls. It appears that large quantities of shawls have been imported into India from Germany with imitation Cashmere marks on them. On arrival in Calcutta the shawls are treated by some peculiar process and then sent into the interior and sold there as real Cashmere productions. Their actual cost in Calcutta is about five dollars and they fetch when sold about thirty-five dollars.

The Republican State Central Committee has adopted the Pampas plume, to be called the "Columbian" plume, as a campaign device. Three of the plumes, to be colored red, white and blue, will be attached to poles, such as are used for torches, to be carried in procession and used for decorations. It is estimated the entire crop of plumes in this State will be required for the campaign.

The Oroville Register relates how an accomplished lady teacher of Butte county married a young gentleman some months ago. He was desirous of improving his education and as she continued to teach he attended the school for most of the term.—It is reported that he was one of the most dutiful as well as one of the most faithful workers in the school.

The Supreme Court of Indiana held in the recent case of Houk et al. vs. Walker et al, that a sale of one partner to a continuing member of the firm or to a third person, in the absence of any special agreement to the contrary, carries with it the actual interest of such partner; that the presumption is that the account of such partner with the firm was taken into account, and his interest in the partnership increased or diminished according to the state of his account, and that such selling partner, in the absence of special agreement to that effect is not liable to account to the purchaser for any sum which may be due from him to the firm, and that prima facie such sale cancels his account, in so far at least, as the purchasing partner is concerned.—Bradstreet's.

When examining a horse with a view to purchasing, says a contemporary, always have him led down a steep or stony descent at the end of a halter, and with no whip near him. Many horses when brought out of the stable are excited by the presence of strangers, and become still more so at the sight of a whip. A slight lameness may therefore be momentarily overlooked by the horse himself, just as a man, under strong excitement will sometimes forget a sore foot. Leading the horse down a slope will show any defect in his forequarters, and running him back will develop any weakness that may exist in his hind legs.

The following is a receipt for a paste that will stick to anything: Take 3 parts of sugar of lead, 3 parts of alum, 5 parts of gum arabic and 16 parts of good wheat flour. Dissolve the gum arabic in two quarts of warm water; when cold, stir in the wheat flour and add the sugar of lead and alum, which must have been previously dissolved in water. Cook until it shows signs of ebullition. Let it cool and it is ready for use.

It Does Not Take many words to summarize the difference between Protection and Free-Trade. Protection transplants European industries to the United States; Free-Trade transplants American industries to Europe. Further comment on the reasons, why the McKinley bill is looked upon with disfavor by European nations seems quite unnecessary.

BAD TASTE.

After the California Press Association had sent a delegation of its most prominent members East to invite the National Press Association to visit California and hold its annual meeting in San Francisco, which invitation was cordially accepted, and about 500 editors and their wives visited this State, and after all our papers had teemed with editorials about the immense benefit their visit would be to the Pacific Coast, and California in particular; and after these same papers had urged the people of their localities to subscribe liberally, which they did, to entertain the visitors, and after they had made a great time over them, and published column upon column of their movements, just as soon as they get out, or hardly out, of the State, they printed unkindly things about them, even going so far as to speak slightingly of the ladies of the party. This is in very bad taste, and is simply disgraceful, to say the least. They came as the guests of the Press Association of this State, and it ill becomes their hosts to speak unkindly of them. When the next annual meeting of the National Association takes place and the delegates from the California Press Association meets them, will not our Eastern visitors think of the stabs in the back they received as they were climbing the mountain grades on their homeward trip? It would be well to ask ourselves the question: Would 600 California editors and their wives make any better impression in the East, or behave better, than our late visitors did here?

FOR SKULKERS.

The Legislature of New York at the late session passed a bill to reimburse out of the State Treasury those who were drafted in that State during the Rebellion, and bought substitutes, rather than go to "the front" themselves. Was this act passed for the benefit of Cleveland, who bought a substitute? Governor Flower signed the bill and it is not creditable to him for doing so. How will the taxpayers of New York, who were loyal to the government and volunteered their service, like to pay a tax to reimburse the skulkers? We believe New York is the only State to do such a thing—but New York is decidedly original in its legislation—when it is under the control of a Democratic Legislature and Governor

OREGON IN LINE.

The election in Oregon on Monday last placed that State squarely in the Republican column as one of the Republican Banner States. The Republicans elected their entire ticket, except Attorney General, who was beaten by a very small majority. They elect two Congressmen, which is a start for the new Congress, which will undoubtedly be Republican.

Klamath county, for the first time in its history, elected the entire Republican ticket, with the exception of their Assessor, Chas. Parish, formerly of Mono county, Gowan, formerly of Bodie, was elected Sheriff, and Al. Leavitt, formerly of Bridgeport, was re elected County Clerk for the third time by 200 majority. We congratulate our old Mono friends on their success, and regret that Parish did not pull through.

The people of the United States, and particularly the Republicans, are to be congratulated that the Republican National Convention is of the past, and we are to have no more speculations as to what is what. But we have to undergo the tortures of the approaching Democratic National Convention, which will be accompanied by the same amount of literary hog-wash, speculations as to the outcome of the rival chieftains of the unterrified. The mass of rubbish that was put in type during the past week in the daily papers of the country has been nauseating. But what won't the "dear people" have to bear from these great "enterprising dailies" from now until election day?

Don't Growl.

Sacramentans are unable to raise funds to celebrate the Fourth, and for their usual open-air concerts, and some are mad because they spent so much on the "poor editors." The Sacramentans should bear in mind that those who remember the editors and printers will eventually get front seats in Heaven.

The bloody shirt is being well waved in Congress, but not by Republicans. They are not even replying to the Democrats. It ought to be plain enough to the country who is responsible for "stirring up sectional feeling."

The House has passed bills admitting Arizona and New Mexico into the Union.—It is not likely that the Senate will pass the New Mexico bill, if it does the Arizona. Both had better wait awhile before coming into the family circle.

"Toilettes."—The July or Summer number of "Toilettes" is a stunner in its array of fashions, many of which are pretty and sensible, but all will find admirers among the ladies. "Toilettes" Publishing Co, 126 West 23d street, New York—$1 50 a year.

As was to be expected, when the Convention elected De Young a delegate, our California delegation at Minneapolis have been making fools of themselves again, De Young blating around that Harrison had done nothing for California.

We have to go to press without knowing who is to be our next President, as named at Minneapolis, but we venture to guess that Harrison is his name.

BRIDGEPORT, JUNE 11, 1892.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

Judge N. D. Arnot writes us that he will not visit Bridgeport this Summer. He will take his family to Placerville next week, as he will remain there all Summer to hold Court for Judge Bennett, whose health is much impaired. This is a disappointment to his friends here, as it was expected he would hold Court for Judge Virden.

Spence W. Gregory was over from Bodie on Wednesday.

Supervisor Pitts was up from Antelope on Wednesday.

A large number of our citizens, and their wives, cousins and their aunts, too numerous to mention, went to the Lundy ball on Wednesday.

Judge W. H. Virden returned from San Francisco on Thursday. Mrs. Virden, who remained in Carson during the Judge's absence, returned with him in their own conveyance.

J. W. Olds, of San Francisco, has been here all the week in the interest of one of the savings companies of that city.

FOURTH OF JULY.

There will be an adjourned Fourth of July meeting this evening at the Court House at 8 o'clock to hear the report of the Finance Committee, and of other Committees, if they are ready to report. The Finance Committee will be able to make a very satisfactory report. We hope there will be a large attendance at the meeting, and that all will take hold and make the celebration a creditable one to the town.

SHOULD BE CHANGED.—Last Fall the people of Bridgeport petitioned the Post office Department for a change in the departure of the mail from Hawthorne, to the original schedule time, which required it to leave on the arrival of the train at that place, but the contractor had it changed so as not to leave until next morning at 5 o'clock, thereby keeping the mail back from this section—the most important portion of the service, 12 hours. The Bodie and Aurora Postmasters made a kick, as they did not wish to get up in the morning to change the mail, and nothing was heard of the petition, which many believed was detained on the road and never reached Washington. Now a daily mail has been given the people of Lundy, another effort should be made to change the time, so that Lundy and Bridgeport can have their mail twelve hours sooner than we get it now. We hope the people of Lundy will unite with Bridgeport in an endeavor to secure this change.

RUNNING WELL.—The Homer Index says that the new Lakeview Mill at Lundy has been running successfully the past few weeks. It is a ten-stamper, and is run by a 4 foot Pelton wheel under a pressure of 150 feet, with about 70 inches of water.—The ore is sent from the mine by a 3000 feet tramway, and is fed to the mill automatically. Nothing has been omitted to make it a first-class mill, and Lundy will now come to the front as a bullion shipper. Good ore is being worked, and better will soon be sent down from the mine. Lundy has been hopeful, and waited long for the "good times coming," and we hope he people will profit by it, and as they are benefited, so will the entire county be, as it will tend to start up other mining properties in that district, and give an impetus to prospecting again.

COME OUT.—Candidates for county officers are announcing themselves all over the State, except in Mono county, where they are very "backward in coming forward" and letting the "dear people," whose votes they desire to receive, know what office they would like to step into. The only offices to be filled this Fall will be the Sheriff's, County Clerk, District Attorney, Treasurer, and Public Administrator and Coroner. The Assessor and Superintendent of Schools are hold-overs. Announce yourselves, and let voters make up their minds in time for the primaries and Conventions. A number of names have been mentioned in connection with the several offices but none know whether the parties thus mentioned are really aspirants or not.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. Mr. Wilson held services here on Sunday last and made a good impression on those in attendance. He will hold services again to-morrow, and expects to remain here a week, if he finds the field one that promises well. This is an excellent field, as we have no less than six lawyers and only two truly good newspapermen to offset them—but it is hard to tell "What will the Harvest Be?"

BIRTHDAY PARTY.—The children and grandchildren of Mrs. Dora Wederiz had a party at her residence on Saturday night last in honor of her birthday, and she received a large number of presents. As it is the largest family in the county the house was crowded, and all had a joyous time.—We hope they will be able to have such gatherings for many years to come.

BULLION.—The Standard Con, at Bodie, recently shipped to San Francisco. $20,060 23; and the Mono $14,373 98—pretty good for the Bodie mines.

BRIDGEPORT SCHOOL REPORT.

Report of the examination of the pupils of the Bridgeport Public School, held May 31, to June 3, inclusive, 1892.

The following is the percentage of the several classes:

Annie Bryant, 92; Davy Hays, 91; Lillie Kirkwood, 91; Lulu Brandon, 91: Nellie Hawks, 90; Hattie Hawks, 89; Addie Doncel, 92.

Eddie Brandon, 97; Albert Brandon, 88; Winnie Patterson, 90; Annie Bryant, 88.

Dora Williams, 76; Henry Williams, 78; May Hopkins 91; Corda Hays, 92; Eloise Elliott, 97; Willie Schuman, 81; Pearl Simmamon, 93.

May Huntoon, 90; Maurice Hays, 90; Dell Simmamon, 85; Ella Cody, 90, Mary Williams, 80; Alfred Schell, 87.

Ray Schuman, 69; Frank Simmamon, 86; Alice Ladd, 89; Andrew Miller, 90.

The pupils, notwithstanding the interruptions from sickness and disagreeable weather, passed one of the most uniform examinations that I ever conducted, as will be seen from the averages published above.

The attendance has been very regular, being 95 on average number belonging, for the entire term of eight months.

CLAY HAMPTON,
TEACHER.

To the Patrons and Pupils of Bridgeport School.

I take this opportunity to extend my sincere thanks to the parents who have assisted in every possible way to make my stay pleasant for the six years that I have been employed here as a teacher; to the Trustees who have upheld me in all efforts to make this a prosperous school, and last, but not least by any means to the pupils who have always been kind, studious, and obedient, for far more upon the pupils than upon the teacher, depends the success of any school.

I must add that I felt a surprise and deep gratification upon examining the papers submitted, both for thoroughness and uniformity, showing that those who were necessarily detained from school on account of sickness, made up their deficiency upon their return to school.

I earnestly wish that the pupils may continue to be as studious and faithful in the future as in the past, and that my successor may have as pleasant a term as I have enjoyed.

Very respectfully yours,
CLAY HAMPTON.

BAD.—The weather this week has been the reverse of good. Cold winds from every point have prevailed, and on Thursday we had a thunder storm with a heavy precipitation of hail. Fires and overcoats have been comfortable adjuncts to civilization. Our dressmakers are busy on Summer dresses, the to be wearers wishing to make a good impression before availing themselves of their leap year privilege to "pop," but they begin to fear they will have no warm weather; but it is to be hoped the "popping" will proceed all the same. Half the year nearly gone, and some of us are getting anxious over the matter.

A PLEASANT ROUTE.—The Antelope route to Carson by Gelatt's stage line is getting to be the favorite one, as it is the most pleasant and cheapest, and has the best and most comfortable stages, and accommodating drivers, who keep their stock in good condition and make good time. Several passengers went out yesterday morning, and more are booked for Monday morning's trip, and the incoming stage tonight will bring in a full load. Travel over this road promises to be good this Summer, and Gelatt will make a good reputation for the route.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board of Education will meet here on Tuesday next the 14th, for the examination of teachers, if there should be any applications for such certificates. On Friday, the 17th, the Board will proceed to open and act upon bids for text books, if any should be received.

BUNKER HILL.—As our Bridgeport Bostonians are rather forgetful of Bunker Hill Day, and most generally neglect to raise their flags on that anniversary so dear to the Bostonians, we will remind them that Friday next, will be Bunker Hill Day.

DELINQUENT TAX LIST.—To-day we publish the delinquent tax list of Mono county, and our readers, particularly taxpayers, will find it interesting reading, and instructive, withal.

AN INDIAN KILLED.—It has leaked out that a week or so ago, during an Indian trouble near here, an Indian cracked the skull of his brother, causing his death.

DENTISTRY.—Dr. A. Hudgens will be at the Allen House all of next week. Do not neglect your teeth—if you have any. If not, let him make you a set.

GOOD TIME.—Thos. Coyle is now driving the stage to Bodie, and gets the mail here in good time, without hurting his horses.

New stock of clothing, underwear and Summer hats at David Hays & Bro.

New styles of Wall Paper just received by A. F. Bryant.

ANOTHER MURDER.

At about five o'clock on Monday morning last an Indian arrived here with the news to Sheriff Cody, that Thomas Leahy, foreman of the Evans ranch, better known as the Tom Williams ranch, at Mono Lake, in this county, had been murdered by a Mexican named Frank Raveda, who had been employed on the ranch, but lately discharged by Leahy. Sheriff Cody and Deputy Sheriff Crowell started for the scene of the murder, which is about twenty-five miles from Bridgeport. As near as we can learn the following are the particulars of the murder: Leahy and John Saxenhiemer, who was to work on the ranch, were on their way to hunt a pasture for a band of horses belonging to the latter. They were about 8 miles from the ranch and between Grant and Silver Lakes, when a report of a gun was heard, and Leahy put his hand to his breast and said "I am shot," and fell dead from his horse. The Mexican was seen by Saxheimer in the sagebrush, but he at once made tracks for the mountains on the best saddle horse in the county called the Jesse James mare, and was probably in Fresno county, or further south, when the officers reached the ranch. Sheriff Cody has sent telegrams out, but the Mexican will soon be among his own class, who will assist in his escape. Justice Mattly held an inquest, and the remains of Mr. Leahy were shipped to Reno, Nev., for interment. He leaves a widow, daughter of A. M. Lamb, of Reno, and two young children to mourn the sudden taking off of a husband and father by the hand of a cowardly assassin. The Mexican had previously been discharged by C. Summers, of Long Valley, and it was thought by some that perhaps he would also kill Summers. Had he been caught it is not likely Mono county would have been put to any expense for his trial.

The Lundy Ball.

The ball given by Taylor & Stewart in their new Lake View Hall, at Lundy, on Wednesday was a most successful one in every particular. The new hall is a one story building, with glass front, and with a car-wheel spring floor, which is as smooth as can be, it is pronounced the best dancing hall in the county. The floor was filled with dancers until daylight on Thursday morning, there being a large attendance from all parts of the county, Bodie and Bridgeport being largely represented. The Bridgeport Brass Band furnished fine music during its visit, and the Bridgeport Quadrille Band furnished the dancing music.

R. G. Montrose, who is erecting a hotel, gave one of the best ball suppers ever given in the county, so our Bridgeporters say, and as we have good hotels and good ball suppers, as a general thing, in this town, they are pretty good judges in such matters. When completed the Hotel de Monte will be a credit to Lundy and those visiting the town will find it a homelike stopping place and be in no hurry to cut their visit short.

The Bridgeporters were loth to leave, and the last batch did not get home until late yesterday afternoon, all well pleased with their visit to Lundy and with the hospitality of its citizens.

CASH.—According to the financial statements filed on the 1st., the following mining companies had cash on hand:

Bodie	$ 1,251 95
Bulwer	12 408 00
Mono	4,800 69
Standard	32,042 47
Syndicate	1 703 80

ACROSS THE DEEP, TO THE FAR WEST,

On steamboats, cars and stage-coaches, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the traveling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful properties and execrable flavor, counteracts the pernicious effects upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, nullifies the effects of excessive heat, cold and damp, relieves sick-headaches, and is an incomparable cure for costiveness and biliousness.—The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids, and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardize life. Persons in feeble health, apprehensive of bad effects from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

Have you written me yet? If you haven't, wisdom and intelligent ambition suggest write to-day. I promise you my special, personal attention. I undertake to briefly teach any fairly intelligent person of either sex, who can read and write, and who, after instruction, will work industriously, how to earn Three Thousand Dollars a year in their own localities, wherever they live. I will also furnish the situation or employment, at which you can earn that amount. I charge nothing and receive nothing unless successful, as above. Nothing difficult to learn, or that requires much time. I desire but one person from each district or county. I have already taught and provided with employment a large number who are making over Three Thousand Dollars a Year, each. All is new, solid, sure. Full particulars free. After you know all, if you conclude to go no further, why, no harm is done. Address, E. C. ALLEN, Box 420, Augusta, Maine.

KILLED FOR FIFTY YEARS.

A French Executioner and His Terrible Record.

Having Grown Too Feeble to Further Follow His Bloody Calling He Retires Upon the Fortune Gained on the Scaffold.

A remarkable figure is about to disappear from the ranks of the French government service, says a Paris letter to the New York Tribune. "M. de Paris," as the principal executioner of France is styled, has tendered his resignation on the ground of old age. He has attained the threescore years and ten fixed upon by the Psalmist as the limit of a human life, and is anxious to withdraw to some quiet village, where he may be able to spend the remainder of his days in the enjoyment of the esteem and good will of his neighbors. For the last forty years he has been an object of aversion to all who were acquainted with his calling. People would go miles out of their way to avoid meeting him, as to encounter him was regarded as an omen of misfortune; and whenever he passed through the streets all the women and children, as well as most of the men, would turn their heads away and piously make the sign of the cross. In many of the towns where he has been called upon to operate both he and his assistants have had the doors of every hotel, inn and restaurant closed in their faces and been forced to take up their abode at the police station, while in other places he has been hooted, pelted and mobbed in the streets. After half a century of this kind of existence, during the course of which he has shortened by a head over two hundred murderers and murderesses, it is only natural that he should yearn for just that one thing which has been withheld from him until now—namely, the respect and affection of his neighbors and fellow citizens. Although he has asked for a pension, which will, of course, be granted, he could well afford to do without it, for he possesses a fortune of some one hundred and twenty thousand dollars, a sum which in France is equivalent to at least three times that amount in the United States.

"M. de Paris," whose real name is Louis Deibler, will be succeeded as first executioner of France by M. Berge, the son-in-law of his predecessor, M. Roch. Indeed, the office of executioner in France may be regarded as, to a certain extent, hereditary, for three knights of the guillotine are each of them related to one another. Their families all intermarry with one another, probably because no one not belonging to the trade would consent to a matrimonial alliance between his house and theirs. Thus, for instance, M. Deibler's venerable and kindly old wife is a daughter of the executioner of Algiers, who rejoiced in the appropriate name of Rasemauf, or "new shave." M. Berge, the successor of M. Deibler, is, as I have stated above, the son-in-law of M. Roch. Father Roch, as he was called, served his government on the scaffold for close upon forty years, during which time he decapitated no less than one hundred and seventy-nine criminals. His father was the executioner of Lozere, and his uncle the executioner of the Ardeche, while his father-in-law was Heinderich, who preceded him in the office of chief executioner of France. Heinderich was in many ways a remarkable man. Of herculean build, he was always perfectly dressed and groomed, while his manners were simply the perfection of ultra courtesy. He invariably donned full evening dress to operate and as soon as the knife of the guillotine had fallen he would proceed to church for the purpose of causing a mass to be said for the soul of the criminal whom he had just decapitated. He was the son of the executioner of Toulon. Previous to Heinderich several members of the Samson family figured in turn as "M. de Paris," the last of that name being dismissed by the government for having pawned the knife of his guillotine.

M. Deibler possesses a vast collection of gruesome curios and relics, the gem of the whole lot being the guillotine blade which served to decapitate King Louis XVI. and Queen Marie Antoinette.

A CONNECTICUT PARROT.

It Talks English, Swears in Spanish, and Has Fine Table Manners.

John Sewey, of the little seaside village of Norwalk, has a wonderful old parrot and is very proud of it. It is thirty-six years old, but spry and handsome yet. Thirty-six years ago Mr. Sewey took it out of its nest in a thick forest in Mexico and brought it north with him on his ship. It speaks English as fluently as and rather more correctly than anyone in Norwalk, and in deference to the piety and moral inclinations of the rest of the villagers it always swears in Spanish and without raising its voice. It listens intelligently to conversation and knows all the gossip of the place.

Its table manners are its most remarkable accomplishment. It eats with the family, sitting at a chair that just fits it, with a napkin tucked about its neck, and balances itself on one foot, holding a spoon with the other claw, and feeding itself very neatly with the spoon. It partakes of whatever food is on the board, but prefers ice cream and other dainties. If there is ice cream on the table it must have some at once, otherwise the bird will eat nothing; after the cream has been served it is ready for the rest of the meal.

Aside from its crotchet about tackling ice cream before other food, it is a well-behaved bird and its temper is never ruffled. Mr. Sewey thinks the parrot is the smartest and finest bird in Connecticut, and Polly evidently thinks nobody else is quite as good as her master. When he is at home she has little to do with other folks. She likes to stand on his shoulder on one leg, with the other one drawn up under her wing, and she cocks her head and listens to his talk with a quizzical look.
